

THE CAMBRIDGE EXPERIENCE
CANARY ISLANDS 2018

Missions made possible

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

The Lost City of C

Your team roles:

Choose a job for each of your team (not on this list!)

Dog-Trainer

Babysitter

Financial-Consultant

Lawyer

Illustrator

Cheese-Maker

Dentist

Librarian

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Your survival kit:

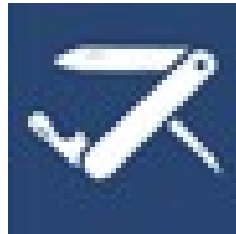

Choose ten items. Think about these categories:

comms

light

tools

repair

shelter

fire starting signalling navigation

first aid

water

food

power

heating cooking

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

The expedition begins ...

Each team starts with 10 expedition points.

The teams left with points at the end will have successfully accomplished their mission!

Keep track of your scores!

Day 1 – We set off on our expedition at noon, full of high spirits. The weather was pleasant but soon the winds changed and we found ourselves in a snow storm, paralysed by the icy winds we . . .

Did your team remember a tent or shelter?

If not, lose one expedition point.

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Day 7 – After the awful winds of the past few days we were relieved to see the sun breaking through the clouds as we woke this morning. At around midday, whilst trekking along the ice, I felt a sudden crack beneath my feet, the last thing I remember was falling ...

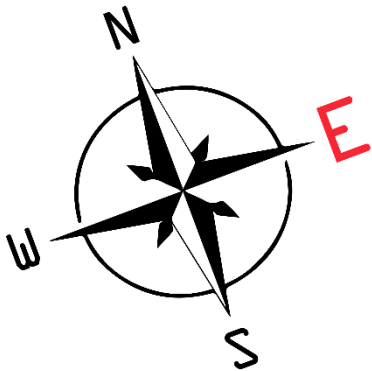

Did your team pack a rope or something to help you escape?

If not, lose one expedition point.

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

*Day 12 – The bad fall a few days ago has made me very cautious, I'm taking extra care with every step. We decided to avoid the same problem happening again by changing our route, turning to the east we . . .

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Did your team pack a compass or a map? Do you have a navigator in your team?

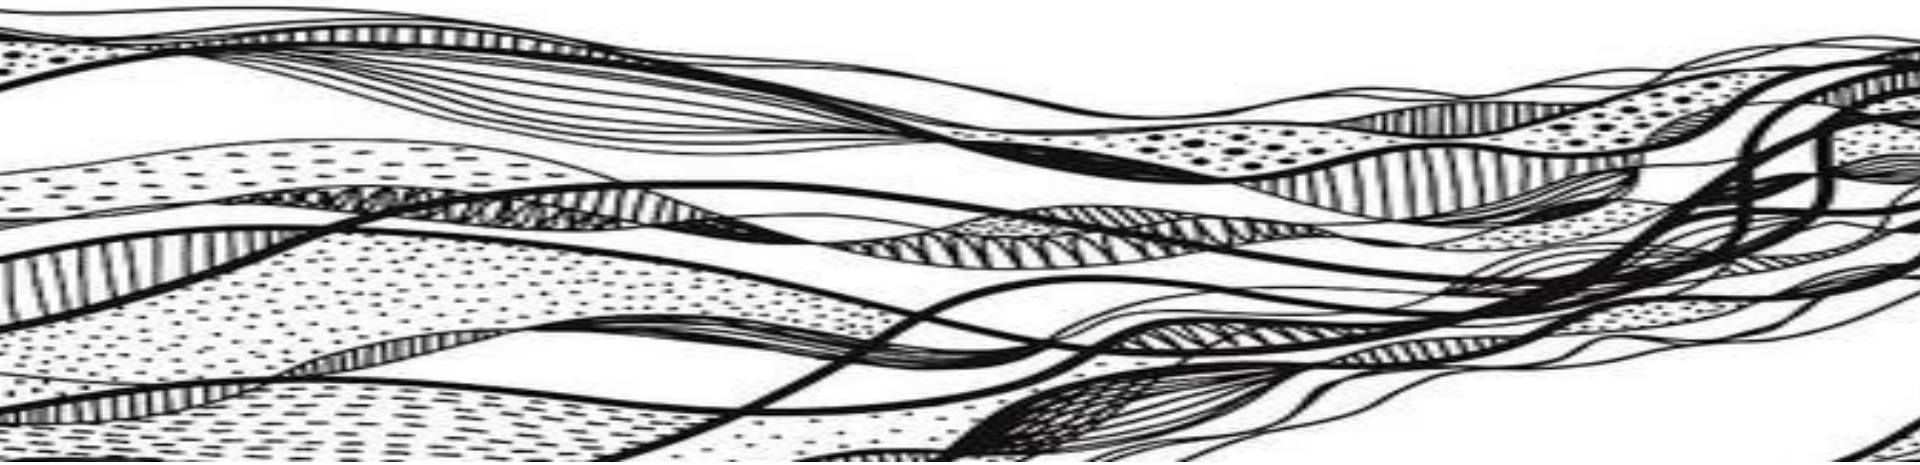

If not, lose one expedition point.

If you have both, add a point!

All 3 = 3 points!

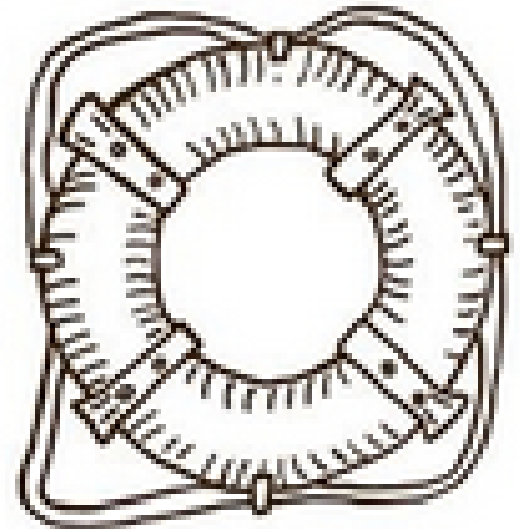

*Day 15 – Our change of route was certainly a wise decision, however this morning we were faced with a minor issue, an unmapped river blocking our way with no bridge to be seen . . .

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Did your team pack anything to cross the river with?

If not, lose one expedition point.

Day 19 – Finally some good news from this mission, today we spotted what looked like a flowering red plant, on later inspection we discovered it was algae. A great Discovery, one to report back to our colleagues in ...

Did your team pack a camera or do you have a botanist in the team?

If not, lose one expedition point.
If you have both, add a point!

Day 22 – The algae continues to make an impression, our team member who collected it has been suffering from nausea. We fear that the water may have been contaminated ...

Did your team pack water purification tablets?
Do you have a doctor, nurse or medic in your team?

If not, lose one expedition point.
If you have both, add a point!

Day 25 – Spirits have been low the past few days as we have battled icy winds and snow storms. We decided it was time to take shelter and try to lift the spirits with some light relief ...

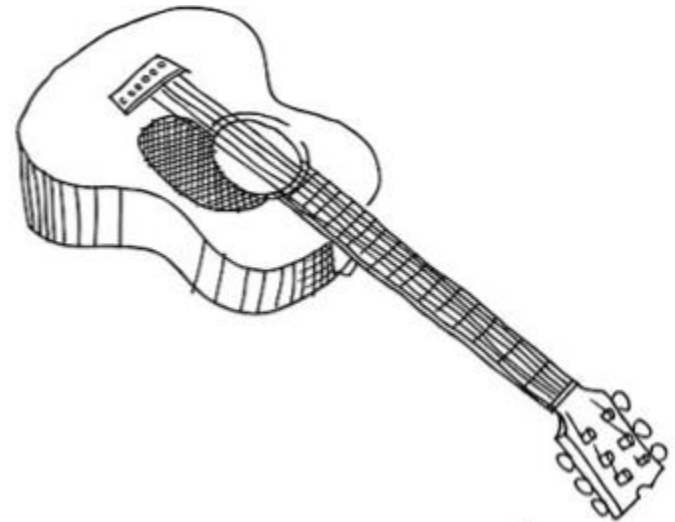

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Did your team pack a musical instrument or a game? Or did you have an entertainer in the team?

If not, lose one expedition point.

If you have both, add a point!

All 3 = 3 points!

Day 28 – Sheer excitement this morning as we encountered a waddle of penguins having a rest near our camp. We soon discovered that these intelligent creatures do have an angry side as one of the team got a little too close and a few of the penguins began frantically pecking at her feet ...

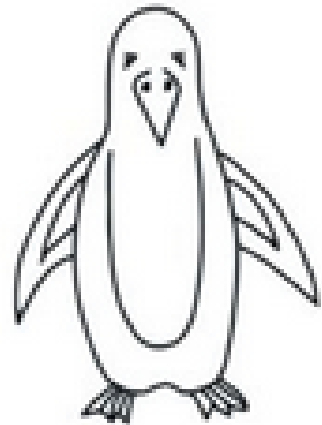

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Did your team pack something to distract the penguins while you make your escape?

Do you have a zoologist on your team?

If not, lose one expedition point.
If you have both, add a point!

ANY TEAM WHO ATTEMPTED TO HURT, MAIM OR KILL THE PENGUIN LOSES
5 POINTS!

Day 30 – We have learnt to keep our distance from the animals we encounter, observing at a distance. Today we stumbled across a group of indigenous people, keen to ask them for some advice on our route . . .

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Did your team pack a language guide or dictionary?

Do you have a linguist or translator on your team?

If not, lose one expedition point.
If you have both, add a point!

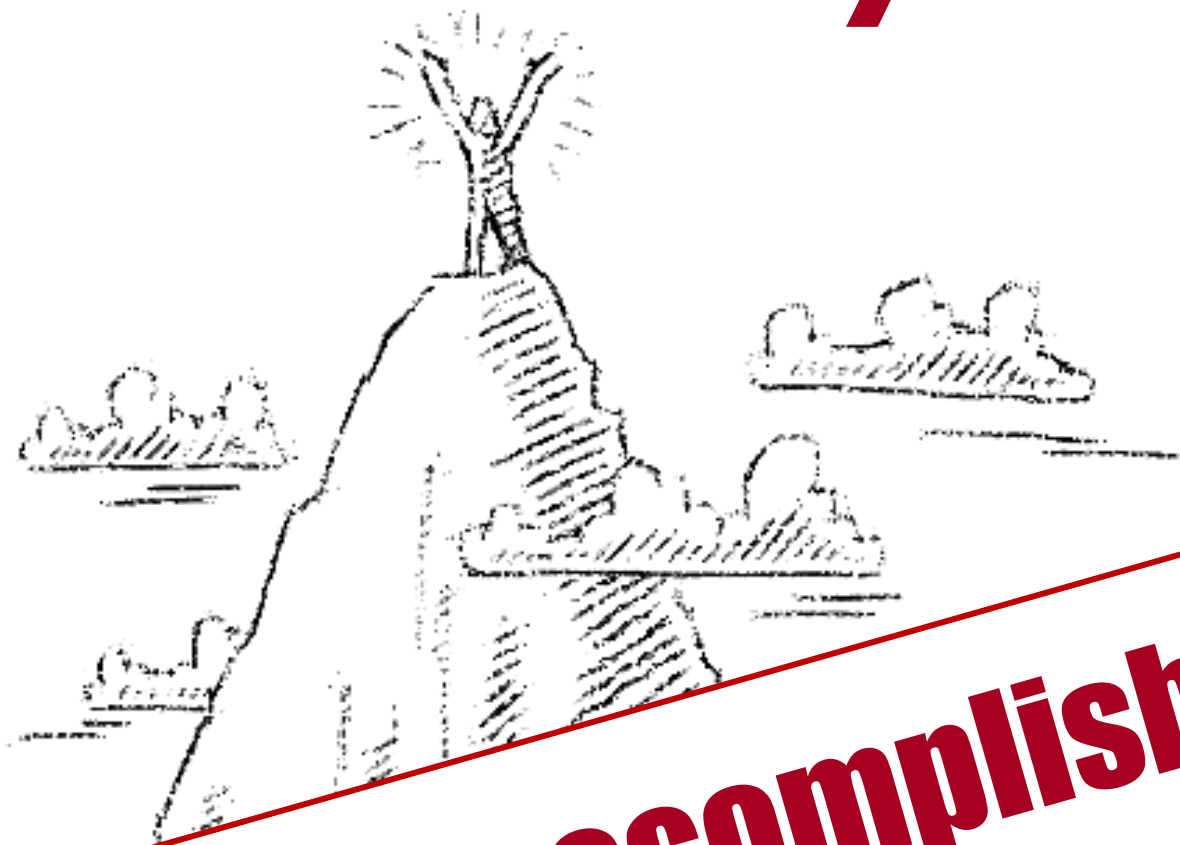

*Day 90 – As we passed over the final peak we saw an image in the distance, a figure we did not recognise, and in the background the shadow of a city, one like I have never set eyes on before. With a deep breath and a determined look we took our first steps toward . . .

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

The Lost City of C

Mission accomplished!