Blog of the week: Sports

Hi! I'm Riley. This week we asked you to write about the popular sports in your home state. I'm from California, so tomorrow I'm going to write a blog about surfing. Don't miss it!

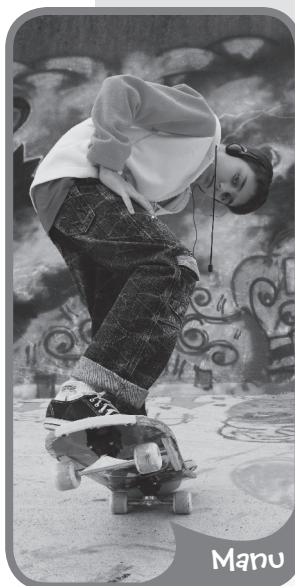

My name is Jessica Thomas and I'm from Montana. We've got some amazing mountains and beautiful countryside here, like Yellowstone National Park. I want to be a mountain guide because I love the outdoors and horseback riding. A popular sport here is the rodeo. My favorite rodeo event is barrel racing – that's when you ride your horse around three barrels as fast as possible. My best time is 15 seconds! I've won three times with Striker, my horse.

Hi, I'm Manu Sorros. We have great weather in California so we spend a lot of time outdoors. I like surfing and beach volleyball but my passion is skateboarding. Did you know that skateboarding started in LA in the 1950s? Some surfers were tired of waiting for the waves so they invented a way to surf the streets! In the 1970s there was a drought so people couldn't fill their swimming pools. That's when skateboarders started doing tricks in empty pools. Now we have special skateboarding parks. I'm going to Venice Beach Skatepark on Friday – it's awesome! It's the best place to practice my high jumps.

I'm Aiden Olson. My state, Minnesota, is a really good place for outdoor sports. Ice hockey is the most popular sport across northern USA and Canada. The best teams in the USA are right here in Minnesota! There's a good reason for it – winters are long and icy, so Minnesotans have to be comfortable on ice. Believe it or not, kids here can skate before they start kindergarden. I play for my junior high school team. We only win half our games but it doesn't matter – we just want to be on the ice. There's a lot of competition but only six players can play at one time. On Saturday we're playing against last year's state champions – wish us luck!
