- 2 A: I visited my old primary school the other day.
B: Really? Has it changed at all?
A: Yes, it's changed a lot. A lot of money was invested in improving the buildings two years ago.
B: Were you taken on a guided tour by someone?
A: Yes, the head teacher. We were invited to visit because we had taken part in the fundraising campaign. She wanted to show us how the money had been spent.
B: So what did you see?
A: I saw that the old gym had been knocked down, and a new modern one had been built.
B: What about the classrooms?
A: She showed us that all the classrooms had been redecorated. They looked really nice.
B: So a lot was achieved by the campaign. That's great!

- 4 A: I went to the dentist's yesterday and bumped into an old friend.
B: Really? Was it someone you knew at primary school?
A: Yes. When I first walked into the waiting room, I didn't recognise him.
B: Hadn't you seen him for a long time?
A: No. I hadn't seen him since the day we left that school.
B: Didn't you want to stay in touch if you were friends?
A: No, because we had fallen out and got into a fight a few days before the last day.
B: Were you pleased to see him again?
A: Yes. I asked him how long he had been waiting, and when he spoke, I realised who he was.
B: Hadn't he recognised you when you walked into the waiting room?
A: No, he was texting his mother when I walked in. But he said that he had been wondering what had happened to me for ages.
