- A: Do you like apples, Jim?
- B: No, I don't. But I love bananas. They're my favourite fruit.
- A: What about vegetables? Do you eat them?
- B: I like potatoes, especially chips, but I don't like carrots.
- A: Would you like chicken and chips for lunch?
- B: No thanks. I'm not very hungry now. I'd like a cheese sandwich.
- A: OK. Would you like some cucumber in your sandwich?
- B: Yes, please.
- A: Here you are: a cheese and cucumber sandwich.
- B: Mm, this cheese is delicious! Is it goat's cheese?
- A: Yes, it is.

2

- A: What have you got in your lunch box?
- B: I've got some pizza and an apple.
- A: Is that orange juice?
- B: Yes, it is. Would you like some?
- A: No thanks. I've got a bottle of water. Do you want this yoghurt?
- B: Don't you want to eat it?
- A: No. I don't really like yoghurt. I'd really like some chocolate now.
- B: I've got some money. Let's buy some.
- A: My mother doesn't want me to eat chocolate, but I love it!

3

- A: What do people eat in Japan?
- B: They eat a lot of raw fish.
- A: Why don't they cook it?
- B: Because they like it raw. Sushi is a Japanese speciality.
- A: Is there a Japanese restaurant in your town?
- B: There's a sushi bar near the station. Would you like to go?
- A: Yes, I would. Is it expensive?
- B: Yes, it is, but my father will pay. He loves sushi.
- A: Great! Let's go on Saturday.
- B: OK, I think my father's free on Saturday. I'll ask him.

4

- A: Good evening. Are you ready to order?
- B: Yes, we are. Harry, what would you like to start with?
- C: I'd like soup of the day.
- A: And you, Madam? Would you like to try the cheese soufflé?
- B: Yes, please. And what do you recommend for our main course?
- A: Well, the roast lamb is excellent.
- B: That sounds good.
- C: I'd like the vegetable curry, please.
- A: Would you like something to drink?
- C: Yes, please. Fizzy water, please.
