

1 Complete the sentences with the words from the box.

dull exhibit artefacts meteorologist unique luxury revolutionised clue

- The Mona Lisa is probably the most famous exhibit in the Louvre.
- Archaeologists can discover so much about the past from the that they discover.
- My little sister is fascinated by the weather. She's decided that she wants to be a when she grows up.
- Have you seen the last Twilight film? I saw it on DVD the other day and thought it was a bit
- The internet has completely modern communication.
- Charles Dickens made a contribution to English literature.
- Oh, I want a little bit of Can we afford to stay in a five star hotel?
- Forensic scientists are hoping to find which will help them in their attempt to understand exactly what happened.

2 Circle the correct words.

- I've got to renovate / renew / update my gym membership.
- How did you think of that? That's such a old-fashioned / obsolete / novel idea. You should turn it into an app.
- Johnny Depp is one of the most popular actors in the contemporary / outdated / up-to-date film industry.
- You're so up-to-date / old-fashioned / novel. People used to wear trousers like that in the 1970s!
- We're working on trying to restore / update / run out the painting to its original condition.
- Are you still using DVDs? They'll be contemporary / old-fashioned / obsolete soon. You should get a machine that can read Blu-Ray discs.

3 The following sentences contain mistakes. Write the correct words.

- They've updated the façade of the building. It looks just as it did a hundred years ago. restored
- Hang on, this yoghurt is contemporary. We can't eat it now.
- The trouble with new technology is that it seems to becomes novel the moment you've bought it.
- The building is so old and in such bad condition that it will have to be completely renewed.
- To keep outdated with what's going on, join us every evening at six.
- Do you think that your brother is a bit obsolete in his thinking?